Hurricane Ian Update

We continue to closely monitor Hurricane Ian, its impact on Florida and the trajectory of the storm as it moves north. Our top priority remains the safety of our employees, and we are actively working to assess their well-being.

BD does not have any manufacturing facilities in Florida; however, there are a limited number of sites along the east coast of the U.S. that are taking necessary precautions to prepare for a potentially severe storm. BD has offices in Stuart, Florida as part of our Liberator business, which was not significantly affected due to this storm, and employees are reporting minimal impact to their residences.

BD is working closely with our suppliers to assess any impact from Hurricane Ian and is ensuring contingency and business continuity plans are in place as the storm progresses. In addition, we are actively engaging with our carrier partners and customers and making necessary changes to shipments based upon the impacted region. We will provide an update if we become aware of any disruptions that would impact product availability or service to customers. Our thoughts are with those who have been impacted by the hurricane.
